

Skill sharing & tutoring

Use your unique skills and knowledge by offering online or in-person sessions to raise funds for Meningitis Research Foundation.

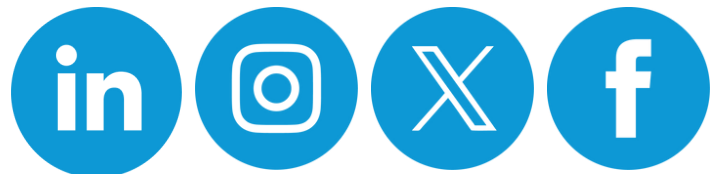

Getting ready

- Select a skill you are willing to share with friends, colleagues or family. This could include:
 - Cooking a specific dish
 - Teaching a foreign language
 - Helping people with literacy or mathematics
 - Using social media
 - Drawing a self portrait
 - Sewing/Crocheting/Knitting
- Advertise! Share on social media that you are offering your skills and include a price per hour.
- Recommendations: to help you get bookings, perhaps include a quote from someone you have taught or supported previously to encourage more sign ups.

What you'll need

- This depends on what skills you are offering, it could include anything from a laptop to artist's pencils!
- A calendar to schedule sessions
- Social media to promote your tutoring/skill sharing.

On the day

- Make sure you are on time and have all your required materials.
- Encourage your tutees to pay you before the session takes place. If they haven't done so, remind them during the session.
- Ask for feedback and recommendations, perhaps they have friends who might benefit from your help too.

Top tips

- To maximise your skill sharing, you could record a session and offer it as a videoed class instead, or even invite people to attend via Zoom/Skype.

Post event

- Thank everyone who took part and let them know how much you raised.
- Send them the link to your online fundraising page in case they want to make any additional donations!
- Share an update on your JustGiving page to let your supporters know how you are fundraising.
