

Two-day International Conference

Meningitis & Septicaemia 2019

Tuesday 5 & Wednesday 6 November

The British Museum,
Great Russell Street, London WC1B 3DG

Our twelfth international conference brings together world leading experts to share the latest advances and discuss today's challenges for meningitis and septicaemia.

Around 300 delegates from a range of specialties and international institutions will join us at the British Museum for two days of presentations from renowned leaders in their field, lively panel discussions and poster presentations that showcase talent, in-depth knowledge and cutting-edge research.

This key event for world leading authorities in infectious disease, paediatrics, vaccinology, public health and tropical medicine also offers excellent opportunities to network and share opinions.

Speakers and steering committee include:

Dr Mark Alderson, PATH
Professor Ray Borrow, PHE Manchester
Professor Dominique Caugant, NIPH
Professor Adam Finn, University of Bristol
Professor Sir Brian Greenwood, LSHTM
Professor Paul Heath, SGUL
Professor Robert Heyderman, UCL

Dr Brenda Kwambana Adams, UCL
Dr Simon Nadel, St Mary's Hospital/Imperial College London
Dr Olivier Ronveaux, WHO
Professor James Stuart, WHO/University of Bristol
Dr Matthew Snape, Oxford Vaccine Group
Dr Caroline Trotter, University of Cambridge
Linda Glennie, Meningitis Research Foundation
